Water Ditches in Cariboo.

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST - Sir: An article in the Chronicle of the 24th inst., on Water Ditches in Cariboo, dated New Westminster, Ditches in Cariboo, dated New Westminster, January, 8th, the writer goes to some trouble to show the impracticability of running a ditch along the southeast slope of the Bald-Mountain. I wish merely to state that the gentleman knews nothing about what can be done in the matter of carrying water on the top of Williams Creek ridge. He (Mr. Griffie) need not have gone so far out of his way to opness what he is utterly ingrant of Assertion. to oppose what he is utterly ignorant of. As regards, the the ditch in question, it will be surveyed in the spring, and if found to be savailable, will be brought on to Williams Creek ridge; and it is useless for Mr. Griffin, or any other gentleman, to say that it will interfere with the rights of others, either on Antler or Grouse Creek. When I cannot acquire a water right without depriving others, I will try Peace River or some other locality where water is plenty. But what has Mr. Griffin done on Williams Creek? Why, he has only claimed filteen hundred inches of water. What do you think of that? Is not that modest for a man who raises the cry of "Wolf! Wolf!" in another quarter? But look at the unblushing impudence of the man. He tells us he could foresee (far sighted westly that it was going to be a money-making operation for himself and others. So he goes to work and cuts a ditch to take away the water that many of us have others. So he goes to work and cuts a ditch to take away the water that many of us have been using for two years, thus imposing upon our rights—rights we have acquired by priority of claim by record, and by wing the water up until last fall. And let me tell you in time, now, that we know our rights as miners and dare to maintain them at all hazards. But what is the plea he brings forward? That the ditch will cost $30,000. What of that to us? If it cost a million you. forward? That the ditch will cost $33,000. What of that to us? If it cost a million you won't be allowed to take an inch of water from us. Does he think to bring that in as a plea in a court of justice? That his ditch cost so much, and now after all the expense he had gone to, it would be a pity to take that water from him. Such covert reasoning won't help you any. We are determined that no man or company of men shall deprive us of our just and lawful rights. He says he has got the right from the Gold Commissioner and the Judge. I don't telieve it, and if he has he cannot take our water from us.

I have been a-ked to interfere on the Creek and see and put a stop to it. Now the fact is, every man on Williams Creek who is a working man, has all he can do to attend to his claim; for my own part, I had not half a day all the season to attend to any attend to his chaim; for my own part, I had not half a day all the season to attend to anything but my own claim. "Why don't you go and see the Judge?" Why don't somebody go and stop Griffin from cutting that ditch?" No one cares about doing it, as he must, lose time, and so the matter stands Several parties have been at me in the last two weeks to get up a remoustrance to the Governor to stop the water from being taken out of Williams Croek. I would caution all men from interfering upon miners' water men from interfering upon miners' water rights, well knowing the serious and often times fatal results that have arisen out of watimes fatal results that have arisen out of wa-ier disputes. There have been more lives lost in California in water disputes than from any other eause connected with mining. Had Mr. Griffin attempted to cut a ditch in any mining locality, in California under the same circumstances, he would have had about one hour to roll up his blankets and leave. I have known of men having to leave without their blankets for far less. I say this without their blankets for far less. I say this not by way of jest but in sober carnest, and I would repeat it. Beware of what you are doing; trample not on the rights of the hard-working, law-abiding men on Williams Creek. If you do they will rise in their might some day when lorbearance becomes a crime. Then you will find to your confusion that we dare to defend our rights.

Victoria, January 26, 1863.

A PLOT AGAINST THE EMPEROR'S LIFE.— About ten days ago, the secret French Police discovered unmistakable indications that the popular discontent was crystalizing in a threatening form, and at the same time a new plot against the Emperor's life was re-vealed by the treachery of one of the conspir-ators. These facts you see nothing of in the French papers, for it is the policy of the French papers, for it is the policy of the Government to suppress them. They are true, nevertheless, and some of the Continental papers outside of the Empire have mentioned them. In Paris it is perfectly well known that the conspiracy existed, and that a large number of arrests have been made in consequence, particularly of Italians. The discovered conspiracy appears to have been undertaken solely by the fanatical opponents of the Emperor's Italian policy; but it is understood that the assassination of Louis Napoleon was intended to be the signal for an instantaneous uprising of the "ouviers," and the overthrow of the Government. The time of the execution of the plot was to have been sometime last Saturday, when the new Boulevard du Prince Eugene was to have been opened with a grand procession and impressive ceremonies, for which preparations have been making on an extensive scale. The assassination it is stated was to take place at or near the point where the scale. The assussmanton it is stated was to take place at or neer the point where the principal ceremonies of opening were to occur, and the parties to the conspiracy included many of the workmen who were employed in erecting the triumphal arch, grand fountain, etc. Upon the discovery of the plot, the festival was postponed, ostensibly because the preparations were not complete. because the preparations were not complete.

If proof were needed of the insincerity of this excuse, it is found in the fact that wher as this excuse, it is found in the fact that where us the authorities did not find out that the preparations could not be completed in time, until say two days before the appointed occasion, they have now put off the celebration until the 7th December—thus indicating that three entire additional weeks are necessary but surely not merely to complete the arch, fountains and other decorations.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

TUESDAY, Jan. 27. House met at 3.20 p.m. Present—The Speaker and Messrs, Tolmie, Franklin, Fos-ter, Cary, Trutch, Burnaby, Trimble, and HARBOURS OF VANCOUVER ISLAND. Mr. Ring introduced the following resolution: Resolved—That this House respectfully request His Excellency the Governor to declare Nanaimo a Port of Entry.

Mr. Ring said he wished action immediately taken in the matter, as he had received information that it was the constant practice of vessels to discharge their ballast into the harbour.

Mr. Cary said he had become aware, only

Mr. Cary said he had become aware, only

Mr. Cary said he had become aware, only that day, of the necessity of this step, as by the absence of harbor regulations any longer the port would be materially injured.

The resolution was referred to committee.
Mr. Poster introduced a bill to regulate the Harbors of Vancouver Island. He mentioned that it provided that the Harbormasters would in almost every case have the entire control, and that it prohibited offal, etc., from heim thrown into the water. om being thrown into the water.

from being thrown into the water.

Mr. Trutch rose to second the bill with much pleasure. The passage of such a law had been strongly recommended by the Harbor Commission. They had pointed out that the Victoria harbor was fast filling up while they sat discussing measures for its improvement, and that unless some steps were early taken to obviate the evil the port would soon by maxiliable.

Dr. Tolmie took advantage of the opportunity to inquire of the Government respecting the dredging machine.

Mr. Cary said that estimates had been received, considered and approved, but that correspondence was going on with the view of obtaining the steam auxiliary at less cost.

The bill passed a second reading.

The bill passed a second reading.

The hills Law.

The bill to amend the Atien Act, 1861, came up for a second reading.

Dr. T. Inne stated that the bill had been put in the existing form in order to avoid opposition; but if any member would propose an amendment more liberal, he should most gladly adopt it. The existing law was very cherryl but in the prayision which the presgladly adopt it. The existing law was very liberal but in the provision which the present bill sought to amend, and that restriction had no doubt been the cause of many of the best class of aliens not becoming naturalized. It was known that England herself had been much benefitted by the introduction of a foreign element in the population. He anticipated that it might be argued that should the bill pass it would be the means of aiding consumeries etc. But the elective privilege conspiracies, etc. But the elective privilege had already been accorded, and should any had already been accorded, and should any evil purpose be designed, no difficulty would exist in finding a man British born willing to carry out the purpose of disaffected electors.

Dr. Trimble stated that he was altogether opposed to the measure, more especially at this stage of the session. A matter of such importance should receive due deliberation. The proposed amendment had formerly been discussed in that House, and rejected in the Upper. He was himself of optimental and a such a measure would induce many discussed in that House, and rejected in the Upper. He was himself of opinion that such a measure would induce many foreigners to settle, but was it desirable when they might object to the perpetuation of British principles? Canadal and other colonies had tried these liberal measures, and now heartily regretted that they had done so. The present difficulties in the United States might doubtless be attributed to the foreign element. He was opposed to the right beelement. He was opposed to the right be-element. He was opposed to the right being given to any foreigner of making Laws to govern British subjects, and ravred that the bill be read that day six months.

Mr. Trutch was happy to second the reading of the bill. He did not quite agree with the honorable mover that less probation was desirable. He thought that the time mentioned (five years after naturalization) was fully necessary. It was requisite for foreigners to become, as it were, aclimatised, before such a privilege was granted. He thought born should be granted after three years'resiwithout the additional five years, as dence, without the adoutions live years, as prescribed by the bill.

Mr. Ring considered the question one of vast importance, and one not to be hurried over. He had not had the privilege of hearing the previous debates upon the subject. He thought the measure contained a vicious principle. Was it because we invited forprinciple. Was it because we invited for-riguers to take up their residence amongst us under the shelter of our constitution that we allow them the opportunity of allaws that would protect them better than anywhere clse? If we allow them to assist us in the minor offices, it did not follow that they must be allowed to legislate. The House must recollect the antipathies that did and would Dougall & Son, was again before the Chief conferring such a privilege.

Mr. Franklin regarded the question as one of great importance. He considered that a time should be appointed to enable the foreigner to become imbued with the principles of the British Constitution. Rome was not brill in a day, (Hear. Hear.) The foreigner could not become a true Briton with build be absoluted for the change. Those who had been living under a democracy, would naturally, by following the tendancy of their minds, encourage the growth of democracy.

Dr. Tolmic said the cause of the American war had been ascribed to the power acquired by foreigners in that country; but there a man are a progress, and three considered that a time should been ascribed to the power acquired by foreigners in that country; but there a man and progress and progress.

He believed that the better class of that nationality residing in Vancouver Island fully appreciated the evils of democracy, and would assist in supporting the British Constitution. He alluded to the quotation of the bonorable member for Namimo, remarking that he believed the Act of William III. (himself a Popish foreigner.) mentioned therein, had been since repealed. The bill then passed a second reading, Messra, Ring and Trimble dissenting.

He thought that the right to vote having already been granted was a strong argument in favor of full privileges being accorded. The American troubles having originated from such a cause was a matter of opinion, in which he differed.

Mr. Burnaby said he should certainly support the bill. He was even prepared to advocate that full and equal rights with the British born's bond be granted after three years'restrected (provided that the distance is less than 50 feet from the main) and lay on service pipes complete for lighting, for the sum of $1750 for each lamp-post. Loyney December 6 1862 THE LANCASHIRE DISTRESS.

The topic which, of all others, is taxing the ast stage of human ex stence, and are now wholly dependant on charity for their daily last stage of human ex stence, and are now wholly dependant on charity for their daily bread and clothing. Large sums have been collected in London, and in every town throughout the country sermons have been preceded for the "Loncashire distress." Ladies and gentlemen have gone begging from house to house, and little cuildren have done without their usual quota of pudding and cake that they might give to the famished ones. Dr. Comming got over £700 in one day, after sermon in his church, to aid in relieving the distress. Large quantities of clothing have been, and still continue to be, sent to them; even trinkets, fans, etc., are sent to them, that they may be disposed of, and the money realized from them sent to the poor. This love, this charity that "never faileth," is, as Shakespeare truly says, "twice blessed—it blesses him that gives and him that takes." ST. ANDREW'S DAY IN LONDON

The health of the Prince of Wales was The health of the Prince of Wales was drunk. I believe for the first time in public as a distinct toast with all his titles, on Monday last, by about a hundred and fifty Scotelmen, in London. Sunday being St. Andrew's Day, the anniversary druner of the Scottish Hospital was held in the Freemason Tavern on Monday. Charity and its avenues being such important topics of the day, it may be interesting to your randers to know this. interesting to your readers to know that this charity was founded when King James I. was charity was founded when King James I, was; on the throne, by Scoteimen in London, that they might relieve their poor brethren in and around the metropolis. During the plague of 1655, upwards of three huncred natives of Scotland were buried at the expense of the Society, while numbers more were nourished in their sickness. Many pensions are given to infirm people. Her Majesty sent one hun-dred miness. dred guineas. THE GAROTTE ROBBERIES IN LONDON

THE GAROTTE ROBBERIES IN LONDON.

We have had quite a panic in London during the last month or two, owing to the enormous frequency of garotte robbetes. The old faith in the police has failed, and it has grown quite a common thing for those who have to go out at night, to arm themselves with stont cudgels and loaded sticks, knives and even pistols. Not only in dark and lonely places, but in streets and squares lighted and well frequented, and at an early hour have Lapless men and women been malreaded and robbed in a systematic manner by the cowardly villians who dare not attack save three to one. Not less than thirty of these miscreants were placed at the bar of these miscreants were placed at the bar the Central Criminal Court, at the Sessions, when Judge Bramwell passed very heavy sentences on most of them. It does not seem, however, to have intimidated those not seem, however, to have intimidated those who are at large, for there are fresh cases in each day's papers. There have appeared several very interesting letters on the subject from the pen of William Howitt, the Quaker, advocating transportation. He asks what are the fruits of transportation? and answers— "The creation of new and populous states."
What the fruits of the cooping-up and home ticket of leave system? and answers again—
"the murders, burglaries and garottings which have spread such universal terror amongst us." ACCIDENTS.

railway accidents, notwithstanding the fear-ful calamities that so recently occurred. On the very line where the late accident occurred the very line where the late accident occurred near Edinburgh, a pointsman was found drunk and incapable; the official who found him had but barely time to arrange the point? when the train rattled along, the passengers little knowing how nearly it had passed into the Valley and Shadow of Death. We have had three explosions—one, that of the boiler of a thrashing machine. The vietimes—young women—were resting themselves tims—young women—were resting themselves after dinner: some tossing up apple, while the others scrambled for them. Four of them ere instantly killed, and some have died since. Another, the Walker Colliery esion, by which fifteen brave fellows carried to their graves together.

VISIT OF PRINCESS ALEXANDRA TO LONDON We have seen nothing of the fair Princess of Denmark during her short sojourn with the Queen, and she has left us as quietly as she Queen, and she has left us as quietly as she came. It seemed at first as if she would by thus quickly departing miss the Prince of Wales, who was daily expected; but we need have had no such foolish doubts on the subject, as the result has proved, for our Prince met his fair lady and with her sped away to Denmark, where, as all young men ought, he paid his court to his future bride in her father's house, and became more acquainted with those who are to become his relations. He has now arrived in this country, and with those who are to become his relations. He has now arrived in this country, and Marlborough House, which has undergone great transformations, is nearly ready for its illustrious occupants. A Princess of Wales will be a new feature. We have little doubt, coming from where she does, that she will make a faithful and true wife to our future King. We hope he will prove a good hus-We hope he will prove a good husband to her, as well as a great and good King to us.

PRINCE ARTHUR. Prince Arthur is living at Greenwich Lodge, and by his frequent visits to Woolwich Arsenal, it is supposed that he will turn soldier.

MURDERS IN LIVERPOOL. There are two murders reported from Liv-There are two nurders reported from Liv-erpool as having taken place on Thursday morning, the 5th—one victim being the wife of a tinker. The tinker and his son have ab-sconded, The other, a woman named Isabella Tongue, who cohabited with one Edwards, a butcher by trade, bat who lived on the pro-ceeds of the woman's prostitution. A verdict of wilful murder was passed, at which he seemed little concerned. He said he intendseemed little concerned. seemed little concerned. He said he intended to kill her and was glad she was dead.

Since commencing this letter, three gentlemen and one young woman have died from the effects of garotting. There is a fresh case in to day's paper. The panic increases.

ROJECTED BALL IN THE EXHIBITION BUILDING offlere is a talk of a grand ball to be given in the building of the late Exhibition. It will form an imposing spectacle, but few, we should think, even of the most enthusiastic, would be able to stand many such long downthe-middles-and-up-again. GREECE.

The Greek throne is still without an occu-ant, and the cry for "Prince Alfred, of Eng-and," becomes louder and louder not bese he is Prince Alfred-but Prince Alfred cause he is Frince Alfred—but Frince Alfred of England. It is certainly very flattering to the English people to have their sailor Prince (who, by the way, is a greater favorite than his brother) thus chosen by the Greeks as the type of all that is great and free and kingly—
but the result of such a union would bring endless trouble on England, not to speak o endless trouble on England, not to speak of the young Prince himself, who has but one step between him and the British Thome, and at least has every probability of being Duke. of Saxe Coburg Gotha. The French people have been on the liptoe of expectation to see if Greece got any encouragement from England—ready to pick a quartel if it were so I wonder what they would have said if Prince Napoleon had been named. We hope the Greek's who desery all praise, for the way Napoleon had been named. We hope the Greeks, who deseve all praise for the way they have behaved, will soon get a king to their mind. It seems rather hard that they should be denied the object of their choice, especially as, on looking round at the different aspirants to vacant thrones, we find none who would bring with him such a prestige of true freedom and independence and progress as would a scion of the Girtish Thione. There has been a meeting of Greeks in Livermool.

us to know that he has been brought up it the midst of a free and great peof!—that the is the son of a Queen whose name has become a synonyme for freedom and virtue, and of a Prince whose stainless purity of life made him as truly the type of a perfect husband and father as he was of the prince it is wife, and liberal patternage of net, and The topic which, of all others, is taxing the energies and filling the hearts of all English men and women at the present moment, is the anfortunate condition of the operatives in the cotton districts. Without exaggeration, we are thinking about scarcely anything save this sad theme and the garrotte robberies, which have become so prevalent in London, and introduced a sort of reign of terror there. Some six hundred thousand of our fellow creatures have, in consequence of the stoppage of the cotton mills, been reduced to the last stage of human ex stence, and are now the first study the type of a perfect husband and father as he was of the prince in bis wide and liberal patronge of and and father as he was of the prince in bis wide and liberal patronge of and and father as he was of the prince in bis wide and liberal patronge of ant, and his sympathy with every claritable scheme that could help the progress of mankind and emiliante their social condition. Is it too cauch to kope that the son of such august partents will inherit their virtues and transplant to the soil of Greece the great tree of British freedom and independence? In choosing an English Prince for our king, we do not expect, as many think, to be backed by Enland to the partent p What we want is England's moral influence to help us in establishing solf-government, and to put free Greece in a position for becoming some day the centre of civilization in the East, and by spreading her comforting influences to our oppressed brethren to enable them, by the help of the Almighty, to regain their freedom.
